

Bisher Dayani

Bisher cycled 200km from London to Bath on Sunday 30th August 2020, raising funds for the work of Bermondsey Welcomes Refugees and also raising awareness of the Community Sponsorship Scheme.

He is a development practitioner and has been involved in social and community development since 2010. His focus areas are global citizenship education, higher education access and migration and refugee studies.

Bisher is currently working for King's College London as a PADILEIA project coordinator to facilitate higher education access for refugees. He has previously worked on refugee resettlement in the UK. He is also experienced in providing psychosocial support and empowerment for internally displaced people. Bisher also has extensive experience in designing and delivering workshops and training for children, youth, and adult social activists, empowering them to promote positive change in their communities.

Bisher holds a BSc degree in Psychology from Damascus University, and a MSc in Social Psychology from Lancaster University, UK.
